

Chicago CF Awareness Day November 19, 2005

Call for Art!

This year, the Chicago CF Awareness Day will exhibit artwork by members of the CF community. We welcome your submissions of poetry/writing, painting/drawing, photography, sculpture, mixed media, origami, etc. that you have created to express your experiences of (and insights into) living with CF.

Why are we doing this?

Because CF is more than treatment routines and scientific facts.

Because art can help us say things that we can't say in words.

Because CF is only a part of who we are.

Because we get to know each other by creating for each other.

I'd like to exhibit something. What should I do?

Let us know (before November 5th) what you would like to exhibit by e-mailing the Awareness Day folks at cacfa@chicagocfawareness.org or calling Jeanine Cheatham at 773 834-0192. We'll want a description of your work, size, display information, and your proposed method of display.

Don't wait until the last minute!

All appropriate submissions will be accepted (until we run out of space, that is).

Bring your artwork with you to the Awareness Day. Also, if you agree to bring something, please follow through.

We would like to exhibit each piece along with the name and age of the artist, and his/her relationship to CF.

Contact us if you have any questions! Don't be bashful!
